

Emanuela Innocente

Emanuela Innocente is the EASA Project Manager for the Aviation Non-CO2 Expert Network (ANCEN). In the last four years she actively contributed to the EASA Sustainable Aviation Programme to coordinate the Agency's activities in the environmental domain to support and foster new greener technologies, facilitate decarbonisation of the aviation system, with the objective to promote the positive impact on aviation's environmental performance. Previously she was active in JARUS (Joint Authorities for Rulemaking on Unmanned Systems) supporting its mission to develop technical and operational requirements for the safe, secure, and efficient operations of UAS. Emanuela has a deep knowledge of the Agency structure having also worked in the Certification Directorate, the Communication Department and having supported the Management Team throughout the years. Before joining EASA, she worked in marketing and career development for Bocconi School of Management in Milan (Italy).