European Union Aviation Safety Agency

FAQ n.104928

FAQs:

Continued Airworthiness, Supplemental Type Certificates

Question:

When did the community get information about the reported Continued Airworthiness occurrences recorded in the IORS tool? Without a summary of the reports, we will not have any positive impact to our design.

Answer:

There is no publication for individual occurences.

This is about the benefit of the IORS tool to reporting organisation, e.g. when findings are made that affect multiple products and are independent from an individual occurrence for which the reporting organisation would receive feedback automatically.

Conclusions become visible to all when EASA issues Safety Information Bulletins about certain technical subjects.
