European Union Aviation Safety Agency

FAQ n.127766

FAQs:

Additional Airworthiness specifications, Regulations

Question:

As STC Holders how can we obtain the list of FCBS?

Answer:

The TCH's are bound to make the FCBS list available. That may come with some arrangement being required, but typically we see the list of FCBS included in the structural repair manuals (SRMs). Unless a database with the necessary information is already available, or can be established conservatively by the STC holder, they should approach the TCH directly to obtain these info. The Agency will approve TCH FCBS lists, however the lists that have been produced to show compliance with CFR 14 Part 26 may already be available. In this case unless the TCH wishes to change the content due to specific reasons, EASA is not seeking to introduce changes to those lists and the EASA approval is expected to be straightforward.

Last updated:

21/05/2021

Link:

https://www.easa.europa.eu/en/faq/127766