European Union Aviation Safety Agency

FAQ n.19482

FAQs:

General, Airworthiness Directives (ADs)

Question:

Can EASA provide the service information referenced in an AD?

Answer:

In principle, EASA does not provide service information as it contains proprietary information owned by the approval holder of the product, part or appliance to which the AD applies. Please contact the appropriate owner of such information, e.g. the Design Approval Holder, whose contact details can be found in the relevant AD. In exceptional cases, with the consent of the approval holder, EASA may make service information available as an attachment to the record of the AD.

Last updated:

03/12/2013

Link:

https://www.easa.europa.eu/en/faq/19482