Description

Description

Cyber-attacks are relatively low cost and low risk for the perpetrator, but can be a very high cost for the targeted organisation and society. This workshop brings together a range of experts from industry and regulation to consider both existing and potential future cyber risks and identify a top 10 list of both urgent and mid-term research that is required to maintain a safe and secure air transport system, today and in the future.

Registration

Please register online, under the oversight of the coordinator of the OPTICS2 project, Deep Blue SRL.
