Description

Cologne, Germany

A forum for aviation authorities that make use of aviation safety regulations and standards developed by the EASA

Representatives of authorities that make use of European Aviation Safety Regulations will meet to share their experience about the challenges and opportunities of using such regulations. Presentations will be delivered by the EASA about the European Aviation Rulemaking system and the EASA rulemaking programme. Partner authorities will provide feedback about their experience in adopting or adapting and implementing European Aviation Regulations in their own local, specific circumstances. Several debates will be organised, in plenary or workshops, on a selection of technical themes.

Participation is open to civil aviation authorities that have adopted or adapted European Aviation Safety Regulations. Dedicated invitations will be sent to the relevant organisations and will provide further information on the venue and a draft agenda.
