Description

For the fourth time the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) wants to provide the rotorcraft community with a forum to discuss initiatives or problems in the field of rotorcraft safety, both in Europe and in the rest of the world. The symposium will take place on 8-9 December 2010 in Cologne: topics will span from the area of rotorcraft design, and relevant organisation, with emphasis on the inherent approval and continuing airworthiness, as well as regulatory and operational matters, and any safety initiatives related to the above.
