

Evolution of Maintenance Cooperation Under the BASA

Christian A. Klein
Executive Vice President

EASA-FAA International
Aviation Safety Conference

June 15, 2023

- Increased collaboration between authorities is essential to oversight of growing, global industry<sup>1</sup>
- We don't operate in a vacuum – political, economic, social pressures must be considered (e.g., FAA reauthorization)
- Engage with other “publics” to build awareness of collaboration benefits
- Enhance transparency and coordination with industry to improve confidence; focus on equivalent safety outcomes
- SMS debate is example of broader challenge of regulating diverse, global industry
- Digitization is opportunity for regulators, industry to “get it right” together, improve efficiency
- New technologies don't necessarily require new rules
- Embrace collaboration opportunities amongst ourselves without ignoring external engagement
