

FAQs:

English Language Proficiency, Aerodromes \(ADR\), Regulations

Question:

When a Member State decides to derogate from the English Language Proficiency, does this require an approval by EASA or the European Union?

Answer:

No, neither EASA nor the European Commission are involved in reviewing or approving the derogation or the underlying safety assessment. It is up to the Member State to decide if a derogation is appropriate for one or several aerodromes.
