European Union Aviation Safety Agency

FAQ n.44557

FAQs:

Medical, Regulations

Question:

If I undertake my aero-medical examination in another Member State than the state that issued my licence do I need to validate resulting medical certificate with my licensing authority?

Answer:

No, if you hold a valid medical certificate issued by an AME authorized by an EASA State then no validation is needed, the medical certificate shall be recognized by all Member States without additional proceedings.

Last updated:

14/12/2017

Link:

https://www.easa.europa.eu/en/faq/44557