

FAQs:Confidential Safety Reporting*Question:*To whom can I report Confidential Safety Reports?*Answer:

In most cases, the National Aviation Authorities (NAAs) of Member States are competent to receive, follow-up and give feedback on reports. They also ensure an independent and autonomous handling of the information on aviation safety related matters reported to them confidentially and for which they are the competent authority.

For contact information on Member States' National Aviation Authorities, please visit 'EASA by Country'.
